

CIBMTR Industry Position Statement

The Center for International Blood and Marrow Transplant Research (CIBMTR) is a research collaboration between the Medical College of Wisconsin (MCW) and NMDP and operates under an Affiliation Agreement between the two organizations. Both MCW and NMDP organizationally commit to a vision and mission which guide the scope of collaboration with third party research sponsors. Specifically, CIBMTR aligns its research with both MCW's vision of pioneering pathways to a healthier world and research mission for discovery and translation of new knowledge in the biomedical and health services as well as with the NMDP vision to democratize cell therapy, equal outcomes for all and mission of 'we save lives through cellular therapy'.

CIBMTR is committed to improving survival, treatment, and quality of life for patients. It reviews all activities through the lens of its research mission and utilizes funding sources, including from industry, to expand its infrastructure in order to improve survival, treatment and quality of life for patients.

CIBMTR works within NMDP's comprehensive Human Research Protection Program to ensure the rights and welfare of participants in its research are protected and to ensure compliance with all pertinent US federal regulations.
